Used in Asia for centuries, Mangosteen (garcinia mangostana) contains vitamins and phytonutrients of all types but is praised for the Xanthone content. There are over 40 in Mangosteen. These include but are not limited to alpha-Mangostin; gamma Mangostin; xanthones Garcinone A; beta-Mangostin; Garcinone B; 3-Isomangostin; Garcinone C; Mangostanol; Garcinone D; Maclurin; xanthones Garcinone E Xanthone.

Unlike straight Mangosteen Juice products, we also use Acai Berry and MPS Aloe, both incredible on their own.

Known as “Lily of the desert” or “plant of immortality,” MPS is the immune modulator of choice for most natural practitioners. Galactose and manose, two of the key ingredients in MPS, are sugars that the body needs to produce a molecular chain so pathogens do not bind to the cell. Historic uses of this plant include: colitis, peptic ulcers, digestive tract impairments, Crohns Disease, circulation, lymphatic, inflammatory conditions, kidney, liver, gall bladder, auto-immune disorders, Lupus, Fibromyalgia, Chronic Fatigue, Rheumatoid Arthritis, Cancer, Multiple Sclerosis, mental disorders and dysfunction. Recently this molecule has been used as an adjunct therapy for patients with HIV. The long chain sugars are used by the body to create proper communication between the T-Cells and macrophage, allowing the body to do its repair work, as it was designed to do.

Because MPS acts throughout the body and cells, its effects are penetrating the bodies' structures. As a free radical scavenger, its ability to move freely throughout the body makes it important. It may be used with symptoms of cancer, Parkinson's Disease, heart disease, and arteriosclerosis. It is also good at promoting the detoxification of your system that may occur from environmental pollutants. If a cell is damaged due to virus, bacteria, trauma, oxidative stress, or toxins you have free radical damage. The cell does not regenerate properly. It may become a cancer cell. The Macrophage are the quality control cells that make sure that these improperly generated cells are rejected by the body.

The body contains beneficial bacteria, virus, and yeast. We also find unwanted bacteria, virus, yeast, fungus, and amoeba in our body. It is important to recognize that fact. We want to target those that are NOT beneficial, and not those that are beneficial. When we take some pharmaceutical medication, there is no distinction between the targeted and untargeted microbes. With MPS we have an all-natural anti-bacterial, anti-viral, anti-yeast, anti-fungal, and anti-amoeba effect and we have that without the nasty side effects of some prescription medication. According to Michael Lerner in his paper

Herbal Therapies for Cancer, "... in a pair of studies carried out at the Pasteur Institute in Madagascar in 1980 and 1981, researchers found that mice given a hypodermic injection of unrefined Aloe vahombe extract were protected against infection caused by the bacteria Klebsiella pneumoniae, Listeria monocytogenes and Yersinia pestis, Plasmodium berghei parasites, and Candida albicans fungus. In the first study carried out with Klebsiella pneumoniae, direct bactericidal activity was not detected, indicating that the aloe fraction was a non-specific immunostimulant. The anti infectious activity was proportional to the dose of extract injected, the protective power being greatest when the mice were treated with aloe two or three days prior to infection. The injected mice developed resistance multiplied from thirtyfold to a hundredfold."

This product is an immune enhancement product known as an adaptogen (modulator). The immune system is composed of innate and adaptive defense mechanisms. MPS will restore the communication systems with Galactose and manose and other phytonutrients. The innate system goes looking for pathogens, such as virus, bacteria and other toxins. The adaptive system decides what to do once the pathogen is found. There are Suppressor molecules that need to be activated to keep the body from attacking itself and MPS opens the communication pathways for this to activate. For those with the symptoms from AIDS, Chronic Fatigue Syndrome, auto-immune diseases, Fibromyalgia, Multiple Sclerosis, heart disease, cancer, various infectious diseases, chemical and pollutant exposure, and other diseases related to the aging process, we find MPS will enhance the bodies immune system and the body will react appropriately to ameliorate the symptoms. The molecule directly activates the Macrophage and this passes through the liver. The increased phagocytosis by macrophage creates a greater destruction of cells that are damaged or infected. Interleukon and interferon levels in the body increase and then the response of T-Cells and Monocytes are increased. This increases the growth of new cells both inside and outside of the body causing more rapid healing and the anti-pathogenic effect. It is believed that MPS promotes the shutdown of blood supply to tumors, aiding in their destruction. Suppressor cells that may not be activated become activated. The body then knows to stop attacking itself. Per Lerner, "Aloe also decreases thromboxane production by platelets in vitro. Thromboxane is produced by platelets and enhances platelet aggregation, which under normal circumstances is the process by which blood clots and wounds begin to heal. But this same coagulation process can also thicken the blood and promote the arrest of cancer cells that have broken loose from tumors to become lodged at distant sites, which is a critical step in the metastatic process. As an anticoagulant, aloe might inhibit tumor cell arrest at potential metastatic sites." Additionally he quoted from a study done by Harris that "It is believed that the MPS molecule exerts its anti-tumor activity through macrophage activation and the release of tumor necrosis factor, interleukin-1, and interferon." MPS promotes the reduction of blood sugar for Type 1 and Type 2 Diabetes. According to Lerner, "The rate of gluconeogenesis in isolated hepatocytes [liver cells] as well as activity of [key gluconeogenic enzymes] in liver homogenates [finely shredded tissue] is significantly lowered following treatment with the plants extract...It is concluded that the anti-diabetic action of the plants extract may, at least partly, be mediated through decreased hepatic gluconeogenesis."

As if this was not a great enough product, we added ACAI BERRY to give us one of the highest ORAC (anthocyanins in particular) values possible. The deep purple berry can up over 30 x higher in ORAC value than red wine or grapes. It comes from the Amazon Palm Tree and grows in Brazil in the tropical rainforest. Full of energy boosting constituents, you will find antioxidants, proanthocyanidine, anthocyanins, flavonoids, essential fatty acids (similar to the molecule found in olive oil - monounsaturated oleic acid), amino acids, fiber, phytosterols, theobromine, trace minerals, amino acid complex, vitamins, minerals and protein.

This fruit acts as an antioxidant, antibacterial, anti-parasitic, anti-inflammatory, antimutagenic & offers support for:
